PUTS BAN ON BETTING AT LAWRENCE COLLEGE

But the Lid Is Clamped About the Same Time the Barn Door Was Locked After the Horse Was Stolen.

The action is the result of the "raffish" boys receiving such a "awful clean" with the result of the Lawrence-Ripon football game when the Methodists received a bad trouncing. ## STATE SCHOOL HAS AN INCIPIENT FIRE

Waste Paper in Dust Flue at Institute for the Blind Caught Fire Last Evening.

Prompt work by Superintendent Hooper of the Wisconsin Institute for the Blind, and his corps of assistants prevented what might have been a serious fire at the state school shortly before nine o'clock Wednesday night. One of the students at the school who can see slightly, noticed smoke coming from the dust flue, which runs from the top of the building to the bottom, while coming down from the fourth floor, and immediately gave the alarm. Superintendent Hooper and his assistants immediately turned the lines of hose located on each floor in to the shaft and then notified the city department.

Meanwhile the alarm had been sounded at the school and all the fifty odd students in the building were quickly taken outside in a remarkably short space of time, each teacher checking over her charges to see that no one was missing. Meanwhile the alarm from the institute for the Blind had brought the local city department to its feet with a jump and they made a record-breaking run to the institute in speaking of it Mr. Hooper said this morning:

"Too much can not be said in praise of the work of the Janesville fire department. In less than four minutes from the time I turned in the alarm, Chief Klein and his fire-fighters were on hand and while we had the fire practically under control, their arrival put an end to all anxiety. It was a most remarkable display of their ability and they deserve great credit. It is a satisfaction to know the city is so well equipped with such a department."

The damage will not amount to twenty dollars.

POINTERS FOR DIETERS FROM VARSITY CO-EDS

Madison, Wis., Dec. 7.—While Chicago and New York and many other cities throughout the country are trying to show the world how to live on so much per day and not lose weight, Wisconsin university co-eds have been doing it right along and intend to keep on doing it for some time.

Figures obtained today show the co-eds are still able to keep rosy cheeks on 30 cents a day. Here's how they do it:

Breakfast—Oranges, oatmeal and cream, cornmeal muffins, orange marmalade.
Lunch—Cold beef loaf, creamed potatoes, fruit cocktail.
Dinner—Hot pie, mashed potatoes, creamed corn, apple soufflé, chocolate cake.

Of course the menu varies from day to day, but we've figured it up and the co-eds' cost is more than an average of 12½ cents per meal," said one pretty co-ed.

The co-eds live in cottages where they do their own cooking, make up their beds and do the housework. Recently they purchased $3.60 worth

WEATHER FORECAST.

Unsettled weather tonight and Friday; probably a heavy snowfall Saturday, with much colder southerly, shifting to north-west gale.

HOLIDAY SPIRIT.

It is better to be a miser than to receive, but it is a miserly hard doctrine to teach to the rising generation whose ideal Christmas is one where they receive all the gifts and enjoy themselves. However, slowly but surely, the world as a whole is learning the lesson of charity in its broadest sense. Perhaps the suffering entailed by the European war has made these facts home, but at any rate many a home has been made cheerful and happy these holiday weeks through the thought and kindness of others.

The Boys Scouts plan to bring a bit of Christmas cheer in the shape of supplies to as many homes as their limited means can reach. It is a worthy undertaking and one which should be encouraged. It gives the members the true Christmas spirit, teaches them the old lesson that it is more blessed to give than to receive and they will enjoy their own gifts much more in consequence.

The Girls' committee work the year round. There is need for such a committee and the supplies they furnish those that need them in no way conflict with the work of any other organization. The Associated Charities are also at work the year round, but make special effort at the Christmas season in the shape of presents for the little people and baskets with all sorts of extra holiday dishes. The churches also make special efforts to care for various members of their own flocks at this season and the Eagles have established a special entertainment while other organizations plan for special activities in behalf of the needy and unfortunate.

The presence of the Christmas trees on the streets, the garly decorated windows and brilliant lights all remind us of the season fast approaching and the day itself will be happy if thought is given to the needs of others, and even though it be at some personal sacrifice, donations be made to some worthy cause. It is the holiday spirit, so do not neglect it.

ECONOMIES.

With prices climbing up to altitudinous heights, the newspapers are full of schemes and experiments and advice about the cost of living. Economies experts are suggesting menus and housekeepers are beset with advice. One of the recent experiments is that of Health Commissioner J. D. Roberts of Chicago who is trying out forty cent daily diet with a squad of experimenters in Chicago. He contends that forty cents a day is ample for good and wholesome food for any person.

In all probability it is. But it requires a certain firmness of human nature to maintain a limitation of one's expenses. The housewife goes to the butcher shop determined not to spend more than forty cents on the family dinner. But when she gets there she finds the cheaper cuts of meat are gone. Or she sees a lot of attractive foods put up in fancy boxes, or bacon, fruits, or cakes look so attractive that she can't resist the temptation. She knows home finding that her forty cent dinner has cost her a dollar or more.

Formerly it was second nature to consider every penny and nickel. Now most people have a very comfortable feeling about expenses. If they spend more than they expected for a certain article, they think hopefully that they will make it up elsewhere. But they never do. Their appropriations for all departments of expense are exceeded, and at the end of the year they are surprised to find themselves in debt. Administering a household economically has become a science in these times. It involves spending a lot of time at the grocery store and at the butcher's shop. Also a lot of time in the kitchen. It cannot be secured by issuing orders over a telephone, nor by sending commands to a more or less ignorant servant.

It involves watching for bargains and keeping an eye on newspaper advertisements. It means testing out the less expensive foods to find those that are appetizing and nourishing. There are plenty of ways of saving money even in these times for people who will make a study of it.

SMALL ECONOMIES.

A man asked us the other day if it looked mean to collect rebate checks from a railroad. He lived in a town where the trolley company charges six cents to each passenger who does not provide himself with book tickets, but returns to the passenger a rebate check good for one cent.

This man said that most people throw those checks away. The man had stuck a great many of these checks into his pocket until he had about fifty, worth of course a half dollar. He was figuring if he would have the nerve to walk up to the company's office and collect the money, as he feared it would be considered mean.

These are days when people hate to be considered penurious. They are ashamed to wait for a few cents change. A payment anything like correct is "near enough."

It may not pay the average man in these days of large wages, to bother too much about the pennies. But the moment one becomes indifferent to small sums, at the same time he gets careless about larger ones. A habit of exact accounting is a good one in both one's business and family accounts.

It is a good idea to keep strictly correct accounts, recording every little payment, and paying everyone everything you owe and collecting all that is due. It develops a methodical habit of mind that is exceedingly useful in these days of free spending and high prices.

Probably one reason why it costs so much to live is that dealers have discovered that the average man is indifferent about pennies and nickels.

THE CITY MANAGER.

The City Managers' association, which has just held its annual meeting at Springfield, Mass., is bringing a new type of municipal officer into public view. The idea of placing one man, supposed to be a competent expert, in charge of the entire business operations of a city, seems to be making some progress. At the same time there are certain obstacles in the way of successful realization of the idea that deserve thorough investigation by any community considering this plan.

To carry out the functions of a city manager, a fellow needs a quite varied equipment. He must first be a technical expert. He must know whether he is getting his money's worth of iron pipe and a hundred other materials. He must be able to build highways that will stand wear, to lay sewers that will drain, to provide pure water, to build school houses and other structures economically.

At the same time he must be a good judge of human nature, a good executive. He must know when his subordinates are "sojourning," loyal, energetic labor. He must also be a good financial man. He must be able to straighten out the tangle into which so many systems of municipal book-keeping are apt to fall.

To combine these accomplishments and native gifts takes an all around man. If they could be united in one personality, he could save almost any city money. But the one great trouble is the baleful influence of politics. A city manager might be turned down by the wrath of factions whose claims for jobs have been ignored. The more efficient he is, probably the less popular he will be.

Under these circumstances a good many of the managers will be tempted to play politics. They will tie up with one bunch of heels to prevent themselves from being rooted out by another. It is no bed of roses. A man who can command all these resources and all the needed diplomacy can probably earn more in private employment than most cities will pay him. There will be a few towns, however, far-sighted enough to recognize and require such services at their real value.

After beating around the bush for several weeks, the diplomats who are working over the Mexican border problem consider themselves fortunate if they get back just where they started from.

By the time that the employees are getting fifteen dollars a day for five hours' work, and the stockholders are making fifteen per cent, perhaps the rights of the public on the railroads may possibly be considered.

If goods of the same fine quality that are made in the great majority of American factories came from some shop across the ocean, how people would scramble and pay high prices to get them.

In spite of bungling work, the girls should be encouraged to knit things for the soldiers. If wristlets don't fit, they can always be used for abdominal bands.

Merchants who want people to do their Christmas shopping early could promote the movement by advertising their bargains now.

Even Thanksgiving turkey loses its zest when it makes its fifth appearance on the table in the form of bone broth.

Many people will as usual join the Daylight Saving movement by staying up until the early hours of the morning for the New Year celebration.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Editor Gazette:

There are several fields of unharvested crops in the outlying districts which have rotted and now carry with the wind whatever it blows a most noxious odor, one that would drive a dog out of a house.

It is a pity that the country some farmers have plowed under this ill-smelling, health-endangering, putrid vegetation, and it seems as if this should be done here in Janesville.

It is also a pity that the city fathers by compulsion under the direction of the health department. People who live near these "pest lots" will be made the change and passersby can go along with not knowing it.

It seems to be up to the health officers.

OHIO CONVICT CLAIMS HIS INVENTION KEEPS ZEPPELS, U-BOATS GOING

Chemical Genius, Inventor of Liquid Fire and Other Chemicals, in America Prison.

Columbus, O., Dec. 7.—Would Germany's "U-boat" campaign, Zeppelin raids and other aerial activities cease if it were not for an Ohio convict-inventor, Dr. Emerich W. Ritter? Dr. Ritter today claimed they would "because my process for converting natural gas into gasoline is all that saves them."

Dr. Ritter, imprisoned on a conspiracy charge, is the inventor of Germany's liquid fire. Both inventions mentioned and others he had perfected and presented to Germany from his cell in state's prison here.

"There is no gasoline and German's aerial and undersea activities depend on my invention," he said. "The Deutschland is fed with my product, made from the great gas fields belonging to former Ambassador Dumba in Austria."

"I have planned ten factories for making my gasoline in this country when I am released in January. My wife is being paid $30 a week by Germany, and our ancestral estates, confiscated in 1848, will be returned to us when the war ends."

Prison officials say Ritter really is a genius with chemicals.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

NEWS NOTES MOVIELAND

BY DABY DEAN

One of the charming things about southern California, according to Fay Tincher, is that swimming there is good the year around. Fay enjoys being in the surf, as the picture clearly indicates. This young comedienne has won a good-sized niche for herself in the movie hall of fame.

TAKE IT FROM HELEN.

Here you are with a regular camp cook recipe, via Helen Holmes; Take a big pot with a cover that fits tight. Throw in the breasts of two mud hens, a chunk of cold pork, the sadles of a few squirrels, a slice or two of venison, a few bay leaves, a half dozen cloves, just a pinch of cinnamon, salt, and pepper. Put it on the fire and let it come to a boil. Then have some handy man dig a hole two feet deep and shovel the fire into the hole. When the pot boils put it in the hole on the fire and then shovel dirt in on top. Stamp it down. Go hunting then and stay as long as you like. When you come back, there's your dinner, providing you found those mud hens.

CHINA HAS A CHAPLIN.

B. Brodsky is the "D. W. Griffith of China." He's visiting the film colonies on the coast and is telling some interesting things about the motion picture business in the orient.

"There must be realism. The natives demand it. When we have a hanging in the picture, we are forced to hire a man from the prison under sentence of execution."

"We have a Chinese Charlie Chaplin. His name is Chan and he is a wonderful acrobat. He gets $12 a month, but it's so much money the other actors refuse to believe him. Chinese women are now being used in the pictures, but we have as yet to discover a Mary Pickford or a Theda Bara."

SHAKESPEARE SAYS:

Mr. Shakespeare didn't have the movies in mind, of course. But it sounds as though he did when he wrote:

"Dost thou love pictures?" Scene 2 of "Taming of the Shrew."

"Film the place," in Scene 4, Act 3, of "Hamlet."

And:

Fay Tincher. "Increase the reels," in Scene 7, Act 2, of "Antony and Cleopatra."

And: "I'll make the motion; stand here, make a good show out," in Scene 4, Act 3, of "Twelfth Night."

MAE SAYS:

Mae Murray, movie beauty, says her pet monkey was badly frightened in the Hotel Hollywood. The monkey, left alone, became bored, and diverted itself by pulling down the pictures and swinging from the chandeliers.

Then it escaped to the room of a strange young woman who had just moved into the hotel.

It was her screams that frightened the monkey so, says Miss Murray.

In the movies more persons die from heart disease than from any other cause.

The Toledo, Ohio News-Bee has this to say of Grace Merritt, who heads the cast of "Some Baby," to be seen here tonight. "Miss Merritt is a star. Her grace and beauty, her vivacity, the consistent repression of her acting, which precludes any suggestion of ranting in emotional scenes, make her work powerful. But best of all, is her reading. It can be characterized as nothing less than exquise. There is a caress in her voice and a solace as conditions and mood demand."

The QUARTERBREED

By ROBERT AMES
BENNET

(Copyright by Brown & Howell Co.)

The worn soles of his highly polished shoes beat a tattoo on the carpetless old stairs by which he descended to the street. He did not turn to go in for a belated breakfast at the meager table of his landlady. He hastened along the few feet of narrow hall to the street door. As he drew it open, another man in uniform stepped into the doorway and confronted him. The other officer saluted. Hardy responded mechanically. For all his cool look, he was astonished. This man before him was the president's military aide.

"Captain Floyd Hardy?"

"At your service."

"You should now be in attendance upon the court-martial," stated the aide with cold severity.

"I shall explain to the court," replied Hardy. "If not delayed, I shall be only a few—"

"You will come with me," interrupted the aide, still more severely. "Your conduct has been brought to the attention of the president. It is to be seen, sir, whether you will continue to refuse to answer the inquiries of your superiors."

Hardy went white, but his jaw set firm with grim resolution. He stepped out beside the aide, and crossed the sidewalk to the waiting motor. As they were whirled away over the sleepy asphalt, the aide sat with more than military stiffness, his head and body half averted from his companion as if to avoid contamination. Hardy sat stiffly at the other extreme of the seat.

The ride was short. The car made a sudden turn, and curved around to the executive offices of the president. Hardy looked at his companion, perplexed. The face of the aide showed only the stern watchfulness of one who has a reputedly dangerous prisoner under arrest. At the entrance he stepped behind, as if apprehensive that Hardy might attempt to escape. A doorkeeper conducted them along a corridor into a small waiting room. He passed into a room beyond, but reappeared in a few moments and signaled to Hardy to enter.

Hardy stepped into the room, and the door was closed behind him. The aide and the doorkeeper had remained outside. Hardy looked around with a frown of perplexity. Across the room a man sat writing at a businesslike desk. There was no one else present.

The man turned in his swivel chair and abruptly made a beckoning gesture. Hardy's hand went up in salute as he stepped forward. He was in the presence of the commander in chief of the army and navy.

The president looked him up and down with a severe glance.

"You are Captain Floyd Hardy?"

"Yes, sir."

"The same who suppressed the late insurrection in the Sulus?"

"I happened to be in command at the time, sir."

"After that you obtained a detail, your conduct in discharge of which has resulted in your trial by court-martial on serious charges. I have before me the findings of the court. The circumstances are exceptional. Because of your record and of certain statements that have been presented to me, I have been persuaded to give you an opportunity to explain your conduct."

Hardy saluted. "Permit me, sir, to first present for your consideration a matter relating to the interests of the Sulus which—"

"Stop!" ordered the president. "Others are waiting for interviews. I can give you only ten minutes. If you expend them on this other matter, you will have no further opportunity to state your own case."

"The evidence before the court-martial covered the facts, sir. If those facts sustain the charges against me, then I am guilty, and desire no clemency. That is all I have to say on my own case, sir. With regard to the matter which I desire to present—"

"Sit down!" ordered the president. "You have nine minutes. Be brief."

Hardy seated himself and proceeded to present his argument against the Vandervyn contract. He spoke deliberately, but with a consciousness that covered what he had to say fully and clearly, in words as forceful as they were few. The president listened attentively, but with no change in his expression. At the end of eight minutes Hardy stopped.

The president showed a trace of surprise. "Is that all you have to say? There is still a minute."

"That is all, sir," replied Hardy, rising.

The president touched a call button, but raised his finger. "One moment. What if I should confront you with witnesses?"

"As I have stated, sir, my only request is that all the witnesses in the case be examined."

"There are some already at hand. You shall see what they have to say about your charges."

The aide appeared and immediately went out again at a sign from the president. He returned with Vandervyn and Marie. At sight of Hardy the young man stopped short, but, meeting the president's cordial smile, came forward with easy assurance. Marie did not look at Hardy, as she followed.

The president addressed Vandervyn: "Captain Hardy has declined to ask for clemency. I have decided to sustain the findings of the court-martial. In the face of all this, he has had the temerity to make a charge of fraud against your Indian contract."

Vandervyn nodded: "Captain Hardy is too skilled a strategist not to realize that the best way to shield himself is to raise the cry of 'stop thief' against others. Does he allege that the signatures to my contract are forged?"

"The signatures are genuine. They were obtained by fraud," bluntly charged Hardy.

"My word is as good or perhaps somewhat better than that of a cashiered officer," rejoined Vandervyn.

"You deny the charge," the president stated rather than inquired.

"Most emphatically," pleasantly agreed Vandervyn. He looked significantly from Hardy to Marie. "As a soldier—until recently—the gallant captain probably believes in the saying that all is fair in war and love."

Marie lowered her eyes. The president looked thoughtful. "Of course, Mr. Vandervyn, there can be no question, when it is a matter of your word against his. Yet were there any other witnesses than yourselves and the Indians?"

"Your excellency evidently has not seen the contract," said Vandervyn. "It is duly witnessed by Charlie Redbear, the official interpreter, and by his sister."

"Ah, the interpreter, you say? This matter may be rumored in the house and even in the senate. It will be well for you to send for the man."

Vandervyn shrugged. "Can't do it, even to oblige you, Mr. President. The fellow has gone to the place where cold storage is unknown. My uncle told you about the affair. The fellow was drunk; he aimed his gun at me. I supposed it loaded, and shot him in self-defense. Hardy was present. He can't deny what I say, without forswearing himself."

"My Word is as Good or Better Than a Cashiered Officer's."

Hardy met the president's look of inquiry, and bowed in confirmation of the statement. The president again looked thoughtful. "That leaves the man's sister as the only witness to the contract. It would be well if she could be produced."

The aide left the room. Vandervyn again shrugged. "Search has been made for her, Mr. President. All that could be learned from her Indian relatives was that she had been very sick and had gone away. Of course, that meant to the happy hunting grounds. There was no other place that she could have gone."

The aide returned to the room leading a tall young woman who was dressed in a Parisian tailored suit that Vandervyn had last seen on Marie. She was gloved and heavily veiled, and she entered the room with perceptible timidity. Marie went to take her arm in a reassuring clasp and raised the veil. At no time since their coming to Washington had Vandervyn been given so much as a glimpse of Miss Dupont's reputed Hindu maid.

This undoubtedly was the woman, and he looked at her with sharp curiosity as Marie raised the veil. Marie stepped aside and gave him a full view of the girl's face.

"Oinna!" he exclaimed.

"Yes. Is it not a happy surprise?" said Marie.

She smiled at the shrinking girl, and drew her about to the president. "My dear, this is the great White Father of all Indians and of our tribe—he is our father—your excellency, this is Mrs. Reginald Vandervyn."

The blow was given with merciless force. As Vandervyn gaped at Marie, her eyes flamed with a sudden up-leaping of fierce exultance.

He gasped and choked out: "You—you!—All these months—this—you—Indian!"

"Yes, Indian—to you, even as she was Indian to you," cried the girl. "You have been so eager to marry a 'breed girl'—here is one, already your wife!"

"It's a lie—a black lie!" denied Vandervyn. "I never married her!"

"You told her by tribal custom, and you told her that you were taking her legally according to the common law."

"She cannot prove I lived with her openly as her husband," rejoined Vandervyn.

The president looked at the shrinking Oinna with kindly gravity. "Do you wish him to acknowledge you as his wife?"

"No, no, sir!" she disclaimed. "I don't want him any more."

"I am pleased to hear you say that," replied the president. He turned to Vandervyn. "I understand this witness is prepared to testify that the signatures to your contract were obtained on the false representation that it was a second copy of the minutes of the tribal council."

"It's a lie!" hoarsely replied the young man. "Hardy knows nothing about it. There's only her word against mine."

"We can send for the Indian witnesses, if necessary. Another matter—at the request you testified under oath that a certain Indian killed Agent Nogen, and that you and Redbear then killed the murderer. When you shot Redbear, you rode off, certain that he was dead. He lived long enough to confess himself the murderer of Agent Nogen. Why did you perjure yourself at the inquest?"

"You can't prove it," defiantly challenged Vandervyn. "I stand by my testimony. This squaw and Hardy have hatched up the lie between them. Even if Redbear made such a confession, it is only hearsay and not legal evidence."

"Your friend Redbear seems to have enjoyed shooting at agents," remarked the president. "He also confessed to having made the two attempts on the life of Captain Hardy. In view of your perjured testimony at the Nogen inquest, one is led to infer a not improbable connection between those attempts and your enmity to Captain Hardy. But the point at present is whether you still insist upon the validity of your contract. Do you wish an official investigation that will take the evidence of the Indian witnesses?"

A cold sweat was gathering on Vandervyn's forehead. He looked at Marie. She turned from him, afraid that he might misconstrue the womanly softness into which her fierce resentment had melted. He wheeled about, and left the room, sullen, unrepentant, defiant.

Mother-Made, Quick Acting Cough Syrup

Should be Kept Handy in Every Home—Easily Prepared and Costs Little.

Mothers, you'll never know what you are missing until you make up this inexpensive, quick-acting cough syrup and try it. Children love its pleasant taste and nothing else will loosen a cough or chest cold and heal the inflamed or swollen throat membranes with such ease and promptness. It's equally as good for grown-ups as for children.

This splendid cough syrup is made by pouring 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), into a pint bottle and filling the bottle with plain granulated sugar. This gives you a full pint—a family supply—of much better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50—a clear saving of $2.

The moment it touches the inflamed, cold-congested membranes that line the throat and air passages, the healing begins, the phlegm loosens, soreness leaves, cough spasms lessen and soon disappear altogether, thus ending a cough quicker than you ever thought possible. Hoarseness and ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Excellent for bronchitis, whooping cough, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with quaiacal and is famous the world over for its quick healing effect on the membranes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

CANAL COMMISSARIES CLOSED TO ALL BUT MEN IN EMPLOY OF U. S.

Panama, Dec. 7.—A law to abolish privileges of purchasing at the commissaries of the Panama Canal, by other than employees of the United States government, has been passed by the assembly of Panama and signed by the president. It has not, however, been published in the Official Gazette, and will not become effective until three days after such publication.

The presence of the commissaries, with their advantages of no rent, no tariff, and reduced steamship and railroad charges, has long been a thorn in the flesh of the isthmian merchants. The number of influential persons who have enjoyed the privilege, given by the president of Panama, of buying in the commissaries has been an obstacle in the way of preventive action. The restriction of the use of the commissaries to the people connected with the canal and its defensive forces for which the commissary system was intended, will be quite an accomplishment for the chambers of commerce of Colon and Panama. It will remove a cause of annoyance and distrust between the Panamanians and Americans, and is generally regarded as altogether to be desired, except by those who have enjoyed special privileges.

TURKEY SENDS OFFICIAL TO GERMANY TO STUDY LATEST POLICE METHODS

Berlin, Dec. 7.—Turkey has become so impressed with the efficiency of the Berlin police that it has sent to Berlin the director of the Constantinople criminal department, Behaeddin Bey, to study the methods in vogue here, so that on his return he may reorganize the police of Turkey's capital and principal cities and introduce German methods there. Behaeddin Bey, among other things, plans to introduce in Turkey the German equivalent of the Bertillon system in vogue in America, and many of the German detective methods. There will also be published a bi-weekly police newspaper for the intellectual enlightenment of the Turkish police officials and the development of police methods.

Everyone using Gazette Want Ads. is thoroughly satisfied of their efficiency to bring results. Have you used them? If not, why not?

CASEY OF HARVARD IS FOOTBALL MARVEL

Light Halfback Sensational Open Field Runner—Scored On Yale.

Eddie Casey, the young backfield star of Harvard, is one of the most remarkable football players of an age. His weight, 155 pounds, is the only thing that keeps him from being rated on a par with Oliphant of the Army or Harley of Ohio State.

A graduate of Exeter, the school where Tad Jones drilled football players and made them future greats before he took up his duties with Yale, Casey went to Harvard, insisted that he was a football player, and made it stick despite his lightness. Percy Haughton sprang him on Cornell with a surprise that was so sudden Cornell hadn't fully recovered its breath yet. He simply ran amuck.

Against Princeton Casey did some starting, and he virtually was the entire Harvard backfield in the game with Yale. Given a good backfield star to help him out, Casey might have kept up that string of victories for the Crimson over the New Haven Bulldogs.

Casey isn't of the plunging, smashing type. His lack of weight prevents any such tactics in his play. But he can hit a line, and hit it hard. He is a good ground gainer anywhere. His specialty, however, is the long swooping end runs, eluding bunches of tacklers, spinning and twisting forward for gains almost unbelievable.

Against Yale Casey showed to excellent advantage when he broke around Harvard's right end, shaking off three tacklers in his sprint, running into shaking them after a thirty-yard dash, another nest off, and continuing seventy yards to a touchdown, which, so far as Casey's work was concerned, was legitimate. The thickness of a Harvard lineman, who discovered a Yale player in the way and tackled him, alone saved Yale. The officials noticed that tackle, called the ball back, and penalized Harvard fifteen yards for holding.

But always there is a next year to football and next year, it seems, this Casey will be a force to be reckoned with by Harvard's opponents.

Since the passing of Terry Turner as a shortstop the great woe of every Cleveland manager has been to get a fielder to handle that position. A great many have been tried, but Ray Chapman alone seemed to possess the class. And, to make matters worse, Cleveland once had Roger Peckinpaugh of the Yankees, who has mighty few superiors as a shortstop.

BADGERS STRONG ON BASKETS BUT WEAK ON DEFENSIVE PLAY

Meanwell Evidently Has Great Scoring Machine But Must Develop Men to Better Guarding Game.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Dec. 7.—Beloit college of Beloit, Wisconsin, will meet the University of Wisconsin basketball team in the first game of the year at Madison on Saturday evening. Much interest is being taken in the outcome of the game, as it will be the first appearance of the varsity five this season. Dr. Meanwell has rounded up his team sharp and expects to win handily from the downstarts. Beloit, however, has a strong team this year according to reports, and are being coached by a graduate of the Beloit school who learned basketball under Dr. Meanwell.

The men to open the season have not been decided upon by the Badger coach. In the practice contest held Wednesday afternoon a team composed of Lewis, McIntosh and Meyers, forwards; Olsen and Carlson, guards; and Hemming at center, represented the varsity, but some changes may be made before the initial game of the season. The varsity won from the first year men by the score of 48 to 13. The defense of the varsity was very weak, but the offense was entirely satisfactory.

The frosh presented a strong lineup against the varsity. Krenz of Evanston academy and Maisel of Madison high school played forwards; Zeller of Evanston at a center; at center, with Karst and Leyden, all-state Wisconsin men, at the guards. Zeller at center, was the leading scorer for the frosh, with Leyden a close second. McIntosh and Lewis are developing into a winning combination at forwards. Lewis is a veteran of three years while McIntosh worked on the team last season. Meyers, due to his short start at practice, is somewhat behind the remaining members of the squad in condition. Carlson and Olsen will play the regular guards in all the conference games at the end of the season. The varsity has been planning to make the trip according to a telephone message from there this morning.

GAME COMMISSION WANTS BIG PRESERVE

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 7.—The state conservation commission is considering a plan to buy a large tract of land for the establishment of a huge game preserve.

The plan, which has the backing of a syndicate composed of capitalists, proposed buying 20,000,000 acres of land that will be left in a wild state. It will be enclosed by an eight foot woven wire fence that will be impenetrable to game.

The project is planned by H. L. Hollister, Chicago, according to James Nevin, president of the commission. Hollister directed the big irrigation system at Twin Falls, Idaho.

One million acres of land are being purchased by the syndicate. About 200,000 acres, mostly in Ontario county, have already been obtained. It is said that the plan will represent a $15,000,000 investment.

Included in the proposed game preserve project is the establishment of a farm settlement. The syndicate will lease part of the 20,000,000 acres they plan to purchase to divide up into acres of each farm will be cleared and farms of 160 acres each. Forty fenced, house and barn built and a well sunk.

In Moscow trotters race over a sand covered track, and they never postpone races unless the thermometer drops below 15 degrees below zero. Sometimes there are twenty-two races run off during a day, beginning at 2 o'clock and continuing until 9. The lighting system is so well arranged that the races are held in the shadows. The timing is by electricity, and all finishes are photographed by two cameras, which are released by a cord. The grandstands are heated and include restaurants.

If the trip with the New York National league club proves successful next spring, it is quite probable that the Detroit Americans will cut down the length of their season at the southern training camp. Manager Jennings and most of the players believe that the long stage of training at a spring camp does more harm than good because the majority of major league players keep in reasonably good condition during the winter months. Jennings believes that the best results could be obtained from a shorter stay in camp to condition the men followed by a series of sharp games with major league opposition.

It is very right and proper that every football eleven should have the desire to win. It is very fine and fitting that each individual player should exalt his spirit to the level of Johnny Poe's when the latter said: "You won't be beat you can't be beat." Victory always is a splendid thing for which to strive, but to obtain it in its full sweetness it must come to the victor unsullied. The difference between a real amateur and professional spirit is that in one case a man wishes only to win fairly, while in the other he is willing to win by any means he can. One is sportsmanlike competition and the other is war.

But little consideration is given "Happy" Felsch when critics are considering the leading outfielders of the American league. Felsch is undoubtedly one of the most valuable outfielders in the Johnsonian organization. In the 1916 series between the two Chicago clubs, Felsch was a big star. After one of the games which had been practically decided by the all-around play of Felsch, Joe Tinker, manager of the Cubs, remarked: "If there are many better outfielders in the American league, I pity them." Felsch, leaguers trying to break in.

For a wonderful fielder, Shortstop Scott of Boston has the most indifferent style of any player who has ever starred in the majors. Scott goes about his work in such a careless fashion that his style takes away much of the brilliancy of his work. He never makes a false move, and usually after a great play that retires the side he is under the cover of the bench before the crowd has half a chance to pay him tribute. Scott is so unassuming and immune to praise and flattery that he will never get an inflated opinion of his own great ability.

LAKOTA CARDINALS OPEN 1916 SEASON WITH GIRLS' FIVE

Feature Game Scheduled for Saturday Night to Open Big Season for Caldwell's Champions.

The Janesville Lakota club Cardinals 1916-17 basketball season will open Saturday night with the opening game of the Boston College Girls' five, at the rink, the only team of women basketball players who have successfully competed with male teams of the west and central west for the past two years. The east has a number of like organizations but heretofore they have confined their playing solely to lower New England.

The Boston Girls come with a reputation. They are said to be light and fast on the offensive with a powerful defensive game when need for such is imminent. The majority of their games this season have been victories for them, they having met quite a number of the fairly strong lives thus far on their tour.

Manager George Caldwell has not as yet decided what the initial line-up of the Lakota club Cardinals will be for the opening game. He does not expect to have to show the real strength of the Cards in this contest as belief locally is that it will take "some" aggregation of females to even get within shooting distance when the regulars are on the floor.

Among the Cardinal veterans to be back are Edler who will again captain the squad and play any position the occasion demands. Dalton, at either a guard or forward; Eddie Atwood, to alternate at center and forward; and Hemming, when variety games do not interfere, to play at center. Leslie Stewart, no doubt will be out with the squad as on several occasions last season he showed up well at both guard and forward positions.

For the more important games there is a big list of players ready and only too willing to don the Cardinal uniform. Caldwell promises Janesville basketball fans the return of a number of the stellar outside players such as Young and Fogarty and other men of their class.

Enough teams from the Canadian border to the Gulf, and from the wild stretches of Maine to the Golden Gate, have written for dates to give the Cardinals a big enough schedule to require at least two games each week during the period of a year.

Manager Caldwell desirous of playing that long. The reputation of the local team is particularly well known throughout the central west and south. To the far east and the far west the Cardinals have had their team advertised as a whirlwind and as dangerous a five as is in the country. This comes as the result of the willingness of the team to meet all comers, from the sensational Troys of New York to the speedy Oakland Golds who were defeated here last season after they had won third place in the national basketball tournament held at Chicago.

Manager Caldwell is selecting his schedule with care and is proceeding slowly and will continue to do so rather than sign up with a large number of teams which will be woefully weak before the season is closed. The idea is to give Janesville fans even a better schedule than that of last year.

The Cardinals will make several long trips this year. One already is scheduled through northern Wisconsin and Minnesota for the holidays.

The elimination of speed events for two-year-old trotters and pacers in California was agreed to at a recent meeting of the directors of the Pacific Coast Trotting Horse Breeders' association. With the State Agricultural society there being similar action, it eliminates two-year-olds from the race programs. Announcement was made by the directors that they consider the racing of the baby horse a detriment to their future on the turf.

Withington Engaged for Next Season—To Teach in Spring—Edler Among Those Receiving a "W."

Dr. Paul Withington will return as head coach of the University of Wisconsin football team next fall. Not only will he be football coach, but, beginning in July, 1917, he will be a full time member of the university staff with both teaching and athletic work under his direction.

He was appointed professor of physical education and instructor in surgery in the medical school at the last meeting of the board of regents Wednesday, and accepted by wire the same day.

During the fall he will have complete charge of the football team, as he had this year. In addition, he will have charge of the physical condition of the football men, acting as a part of the university medical clinic. During the second semester he will give instruction in surgery as a regular member of the medical school.

Twenty football W's were awarded to members of the Wisconsin squad on Wednesday night by the athletic board. They are Berg, Carpenter, Cramer, Edler, Fitzer, Gardner, Garsney, Hancock, Graper, Kelly, Kieckhefer, Kralovac, McCrory, Capt. Meyers, Olson, Simpson, Taylor, and McFadden, manager. Germaine Schultz was elected manager for next year.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Dec. 7, 1876.—A slight flurry of snow visited the city today.
Kent & Lawrence are improving their Main street factory.
The police court is having some business this afternoon.
The Democrats don't care anything about Florida. Give us Oregon, is their cry.
One man has changed the number of his box in the new postoffice four times since renting it. He must be a Democrat, and wants a change.
The Temple of Honor will give their first annual entertainment and dance at the hall in Mitchell's block on Friday, Dec. 23. A grand time is anticipated.
The Milwaukee Sentinel of yesterday has the following: "George H. Osmond of Janesville is spending a few days in town. He will be a candidate for sergeant-at-arms of the assembly. He has been assistant sergeant for some years."
For weeks and weeks, through good report and through evil report, through rain, wind and sunshine, our flag has floated in the breeze, until today it waves in token of the victory of its champions, Hayes and Wheeler. Long since its opponent has fluttered itself to pieces in its reaching after ineligible electors, attempts to bulldoze, etc., and they were obliged to take it from the track. Victory perches on our banner, and, confident of victory in the future, we go forward, our motto still being "In God Our Trust."
